TEN BOOKS To Learn About Seasons

"Season Song"
By Marcy Barack
J-ER BAR

"Sing of seasons as we grow." Each of the four seasons is covered in this rhyming text. A brother and sister discover new activities as time passes.

"Seasons"
By Blexbolex
J-ER BLE

Evoking the cyclical nature of the seasons, Blexbolex uses simple terms for the objects, people, and weather associated with each season.

"Red Leaf, Yellow Leaf"
By Lois Ehlert
J-ER EHL

A child explains the growth of a sugar maple tree that belongs to the family. The story makes its way through each of the seasons, but fall is when to visit the tree to see it at its most beautiful.

"When Spring Comes"
By Kevin Henkes
J-ER HEN

Before spring comes, the ground is still covered in snow and the trees look like sticks. But just wait until the trees and seeds start to sprout!

"The Snowy Day"
By Ezra Jack Keats
J-ER KEA

A child makes his way through his urban neighborhood on a snow day. Throwing snowballs, sliding down huge hills, and sledding are no match for hugs from mom when he gets home though.

"The Watermelon Seed"
By Greg Pizzoli
J-ER PIZ

An alligator chomps down on his favorite summertime treat, watermelon. But then he swallows a seed. Will a watermelon grow inside him?

"Maki, My Seasons"
By Zanim
J-ER ZAN

Maki talks about the fun things that you can do during each of the seasons. Every page is bordered by smaller images associated with the season.

"Best Season Ever"
By Fran Manushkin
J-ER MAN

Katie and her friends Pedro and JoJo discuss their favorite seasons in this beginning reader. What makes one season better than the others? They all have a pretty strong opinion.

"Watching the Seasons" series
By Emily C. Dawson
J 508.2 DAW

Each book in the series covers a single season: fall, winter, spring, summer. Simple text and vibrant photographs bring the seasons to life.

"Changing Seasons"
By Siân Smith
J 508.2 SMI

Covers weather, clothes, plants, animals, and things we do through the cyclical course of a year. Bright photographs line the pages throughout and a glossary in the back gives definitions.
